

RAILROADS REFUSED ENGINEERS' DEMANDS

PETITIONS ASKING FOR NINETEEN PERCENT INCREASE IN PAY DENIED IN STATEMENT TODAY.

EXPENSE IS TOO GREAT

Fifty Railways in Joint Reply State That Other Employees Would Press for Increase Bringing on Bankruptcy.

New York, March 25.—Fifty railways comprising practically all the lines east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western today refused to grant an increase in wages demanded by their locomotive engineers.

The engineers' demand presented Jan. 25, was for an increase amounting to about 19 percent a year. The railways' refusal is based on the assertion that they are financially unable to bear the increased expense.

The railways point out that the proposed increase will amount to $17,553,792 annually. This increase, they say, would be equivalent to placing on their property a lien of $188,844,818 or four percent security which would have preference over first mortgage bonds.

REBEL FORCES SEEK TO RAISE WAR FUND

Mexicans Making Every Effort to Secure Government Taxes, Etc., With Which to Continue War.

Washington, March 25.—The rebels are taking advantage of their success in Chihuahua to raise funds with which to foster the revolution. The state department reports that the rebels are making efforts to collect the taxes due the federal government at the end of this month.

Efforts to force the banks and business houses of Chihuahua to advance a loan of $1,200,000 Mexican dollars also are being made by the insurgents. This loan is to be guaranteed by that state.

UNIVERSITY WILL SEEK TO SECURE ATHLETICS

Madison, Wis., March 25.—A policy of encouraging promising high school athletes to matriculate at the University of Wisconsin will be pursued by the athletic department through its athletic bulletin, which will be sent regularly to every high school in the state.

The bulletin in this regard will be to acquaint the secondary schools of Wisconsin with the real athletic advantages of Wisconsin, to furnish them with accounts of what is being done in the various branches of sport, and in every way to boost the University as a desirable place for the young man seeking both education and an athletic career.

The bulletin will furnish them with suggestions on training, coaching, selection of players, etc. C. C. Chambers, Little Rock, Ark., is the new editor of the Bulletin.

TEXTILE WORKERS TO RECEIVE MORE PAY

General Upward Movement in Wages Today Affected More Than 100,000 Operatives in Mills.

Boston, Mass., March 25.—The general upward movement in the wages of New England textile workers today affected more than 100,000 operatives in the cotton and woolen mills in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont and other places in northern New England. The advance, which became operative this morning, in the section named, ranges from five to fifteen per cent. Fully two hundred and seventy-five thousand operatives will share in the raise by April 1, if all the mills which have not yet joined in the wage movement follow the lead of the larger concerns.

YOUNG MAN'S VICTIM DIES OF INJURIES

Victim of Koehler Boy Dies This Morning in Milwaukee Hospital of Injuries.—Warrant for Koehler.

Milwaukee, March 25.—After being unconscious for ninety-six hours, Silas Anna Miller, aged thirty-two, victim of the brutal assault of Alfred Koehler, her cousin, last Thursday, died at the Emergency hospital at six o'clock this morning. Koehler was taken to the morgue and will tell the six men of the jury just how he committed the murder. A warrant will then be issued and Koehler arraigned before Judge Meenan on the charge of murder. He will be bound over to the municipal court.

JAPANESE DIET IS DISSOLVED TODAY

Imperial Diet Dissolved Upon Expiration of Term of Representatives.

Tokyo, March 25.—The Imperial diet was dissolved today on the expiration of the term of the members of the house of representatives. The general elections are to be held during the month of May.

David Dunbar Died at His Home in Green County Village Saturday Morning.

Brodhead, March 25.—David Dunbar, a life-long resident of this place, passed away at his home here Saturday morning, after an illness of ten days. He has been engaged in the laundry business here for a number of years, and has many friends in this section. He leaves a wife and one son.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE POWERS HOLD CONFERENCE

Peking, March 25.—The ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France today presented to the Chinese government a joint memorandum recapitulating the negotiations between the financial groups in the Chinese government since Feb. 27, and establishing a strong case of broken faith on the part of China. The memorandum concludes with a protest against the Belgian loan in this section. It leaves a wife and one son.

WASHBURN MAN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF BLACKMAIL

San Diego, March 25.—Kazeno L. Randle, of Washburn, Wis., was arrested here today by Sheriff Clegg, on a complaint of the Edward Hines Lumber company charging criminal libel and attempted blackmail. Complaint is signed by Christian F. Wolke, secretary of the Hines company.

MAN OF MYSTERY TO UNDERGO OPERATION AT ANN ARBOR

Miles, Mich., March 25.—Niles "man of mystery," who insists that he is George A. Kinnell, missing banker, went to Ann Arbor today to undergo an examination and possibly an operation to relieve an alleged pressure on his brain. There are many persons here who still believe the claimant is the missing man.

HOT RACE FOR SENATE IN FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

Madison, March 25.—Nomination papers were filed today by Henry M. Curbarton, town of Greenfield, Outagamie county, and by Fred Felix Wenzel of Appleton as candidates for the republican nomination for states senator in the 14th senatorial district to be voted on April 2 to fill vacancies. W. T. Stevens, Rhinelander, filed nomination papers as candidate to succeed late Senator J. A. Wright, in the 30th district.

MINER COMMITTEES AWAIT CONFERENCE

United Mine Workers Decide to Take No Step Until Outcome of Conference Between Operators is Over.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 25.—Both the policy committee and the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, at a meeting here today decided to take no action on the coal situation at present pending the outcome of the conference of the operators and miners of the bituminous fields which will be resumed tomorrow.

President John P. White informed the miners' district presidents that the coal situation was critical, so far as the miners were concerned, but he hoped some means of averting a strike or even a prolonged suspension would be devised.

In regard to the 175,000 or more anthracite miners Mr. White said the situation was clearly "not in prospect of a settlement" in sight. All negotiations between the miners and the operators having been broken off in New York, March 13th, and no overtures for a renewal of the negotiations have been received.

GOVERNMENT ENDS ARGUMENTS TODAY

Attorney for Government Finishes Arguments Against Packers.

Chicago, March 25.—Special counsel Pierce Butler, took up the final argument of the government today in the trial of the ten Chicago packers who, since December 15, 1911, have been before a jury in the United States district court to answer a charge of having maintained a combination in restraint of trade in violation of the criminal provision of the Sherman anti-trust law. In substance the argument of attorney Butler was a contention that Armour & Co., and Morris & Co., today have just as effective monopoly of the meat business of the country as though their proposed billion dollar combination had been actually launched in 1902. Counsel for the government sought to meet every contention raised by the attorneys for the packers in their arguments.

A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE CALLED

Chicago, March 25.—Gov. Deneen today called the state legislature in special session to act on a preferential presidential primary act to be effective for the state primaries April 23.

SIXTH DEATH ON GRADE CROSSING AT LA CROSSE

La Crosse, March 25.—The sixth death in the hot few months due to trespassing on the new double track of the Milwaukee road, near Sparta, occurred yesterday when Clyde Brown, a farmer, was struck and killed while walking home on the track.

POSTAL BANK CLERKS TO MEET IN MADISON

Seventy-five Clerks in New Wisconsin Banks to Be Instructed by Inspector Walker on April 12.

Madison, March 25.—About seventy-five postmasters and clerks in Wisconsin representing fifty-eight new postal savings banks, which are to be opened April 12, will meet in Madison at the postoffice, Wednesday, to receive instruction on how to conduct the savings banks. Postoffice Inspector J. P. Walker will act as instructor.

ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF STATE BANK EXAMINER.

Madison, Wis., March 25.—Commissioner of Banking, A. E. Knott, has accepted the resignation of state banking examiner A. B. Gulliford, Milwaukee who leaves to accept the office of vice-president and manager of the Citizens and Savings Trust Company, Milwaukee. The resignation takes effect today.

KOREAN ROAD OPENED FROM SEOUL TO COAST

Kusan is Western Terminal of New Railroad Opened Up in Korea Today.

Seoul, Korea, March 25.—The railway line from this city to the port of Kusan on the west coast was opened for traffic today.

END OF STRIKE NOW WOULD NOT PREVENT GREAT PRIVATIONS

British Situation in Coal and Industrial Lines Rapidly Becoming More Acute.—Suffering is Intense.

London, March 25.—Even if the national coal strike were settled at once and the million miners returned to work, the conditions of the communities would have been rendered idle by lack of supplies of coal necessary to carry on their trade, could not be immediately relieved.

There are thousands of dependents suffering great privation and in South Wales, where the funds of the miners' union are completely exhausted, the condition has reached a terrible stage. A similar story comes from Scotland.

Larger numbers of men in East Lancashire are in such a state that they are searching for coal in the disused workings along the beach. Terrible distress also prevails among the wives and children of the non-unionists who have no strike pay coming.

Difficulty has been experienced by the miners' union in many districts in restraining the alien from returning to work in the pits.

The train service has been still further reduced today while steam heat service across the English Channel has been further curtailed. The seaside resorts which had made preparations for a big Easter trade have been compelled to cancel all arrangements for special train service and will suffer a great loss.

Prof. H. S. Jostens, United Kingdom fifty million dollars every week it costs. The delegates of the miners and the owners had a meeting with Premier Asquith and several members of his cabinet this morning prior to the joint conference which has been arranged for today.

AMERICAN TEACHER KILLED BY CHINESE

Oskosh Young Man Slaughtered by Pirates in Interior of China.

Washington, March 25.—The state department today telegraphed to B. Hicks, Oskosh, Wis., father of the American teacher who was killed by Chinese pirates near Wushan, Szechuan, to ascertain what disposition he wishes made of the body. As the murder seems to have been the work of pirates it is improbable that the United States will take any action.

Hicks, Hoffman and Sheldon are college professors, were attacked while exploring the gorges in the Yangtze river in a boat and all three were robbed and wounded. Soldiers and a doctor have been dispatched from this city to Wushan, which is about seventy-five miles to the west on the Yangtze.

Wants the Body. General H. Hicks today made an effort to get into touch with the state department at Washington in an effort to have the remains of his son, Bert Hicks, murdered by pirates in China, brought to this country for burial, but nothing definite has so far developed in this regard, however.

Hicks is exceedingly anxious to have the young man's remains brought back to Oskosh for burial. To add to the affliction Luther Hicks, a younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks is now at his home suffering with an incurable disease presumably cancer.

WILL HANG MURDERER OF HUBBELL FAMILY

Arrangements Made for Execution of Rex Rasco at Farmville, Missouri.—Killed Farmer and Family.

Marionville, Mo., March 25.—Arrangements have been made for the execution in the county jail tomorrow of Rex Rasco, convicted of the murder of the Hubbell family. The crime was committed Nov. 29, 1910. Odo Hubbell, a farmer, and his wife and two children were shot and killed at their home near the village of Barnard, the murderer afterward setting fire to the house to conceal the crime. Suspicion pointed to Rex Rasco, a neighbor and former convict, and he was arrested and convicted of the quadruple slaying. A poker game in which Rasco lost heavily and Hubbell won, is believed to have furnished the motive for the crime.

RIVERS ARE RISING INDICATING FLOODS OF SERIOUS NATURE

Both Missouri and Mississippi Waters Are Up and Fears Are Entertained in Lowland Cities.

St. Louis, March 25.—Further fears were imminent this morning because of the rising temperature which followed yesterday's heavy fall of snow in the states of Kansas and Illinois.

The river was rising slowly here and at stages at points above St. Louis, while the river's back flow is at the flood stage for most of its length and serious overflows are expected.

The Missouri is rising rapidly at Fulton, Missouri, and there is anxiety over its stage as far as Omaha.

With the water flowing over the new government levee at Point Plume, Mo., it is feared that the whole of New Madrid county will be overflooded by the Mississippi within a day or two. The water was pouring into the lowlands this morning.

Chelmsford, O., March 25.—The Ohio river passed the flood stage here today and continues rising at 7 o'clock this morning the stage was 50.2 feet. The local weather forecaster predicts that the crest of the high water will reach here tomorrow morning bringing the river up to 51 or 52 feet. Considerable damage has already been caused by the high water. In the east bank west end of the city collars and houses have been flooded.

STEPHENSON CASE OPENED IN SENATE

First of Program of Speeches Was Given Today and Final Vote May Be Delayed Until Middle of Week.

Washington, March 25.—The opening in the Senate of the question over the right of Senator Stephenson to his seat began today with the first of the program of speeches that may hold back a final vote until the middle of the week. The senate under retirement by special order will pass this "Legislative Day" but this parliamentary phrase may cover any number of days. The case is one of the two in which two republican senators have been under fire for alleged use of collection funds in work that brought about their re-election. The other is Senator Lorimer of Illinois still pending in the election committee.

Womens' Golf Match at Pinhurst. Pinhurst, N. C., March 25.—The annual United North and South amateur golf championship tournament for women opened at the Country Club links here today and will continue through the remainder of the week.

AUTOMOBILE BANDITS TERRORIZING FRANCE

Band of Desperadoes Who Committed Series of Crimes in February in Murder on Highway.

Paris, March 25.—The automobile bandits who in February terrorized many districts in France by carrying out an extraordinary series of crimes have perpetrated during the last few days a series of daring crimes which reached the climax this morning in a murder on the public highway between Villeneuve street George and Paris.

Four bandits who occupied an automobile ordered the chauffeur of a private car to stop and when he refused to do so the highwaymen shot him dead and wounded the occupant of the car. After throwing the body of the chauffeur into a ditch the bandits entered their automobile and drove towards Paris.

Public opinion is greatly aroused over this atrocious attack in the vicinity of the capital.

The bandits meantime are employing the most impudent tactics. The police today received a sheet of paper on which was stamped it was purporting to be of their finger prints. These were naturally fictitious and it was declared in some quarters that the bandits would soon visit the police quarters and shoot several of the officials. It was thought that the bandits had been captured on February 29th when two anarchists were captured at St. Pontoux about ten miles northwest of Paris after an attempt to assassinate a wealthy lawyer but it is thought that they were only part of the gang.

In February the bandits robbed and shot a messenger by daylight in the streets of Paris and also killed a policeman in front of St. Lazare station shooting him from the window of their automobile.

ARE CLOSING IN ON VIRGINIA OUTLAWS

Detectives Believe That They Have All But One of Allen Band Cornered in Blue Ridge.

Hillville, Va., March 25.—Another day's hunt for the Allen is on with the hunters still confident that by Wednesday, they will have run down at least three of the wanted men.

A night's sleep in the hills badly needed after yesterday's strenuous tramping through mountain brush in the drizzling rain put the detectives in shape for today's work, and the whole force made for the mountains again soon after daylight.

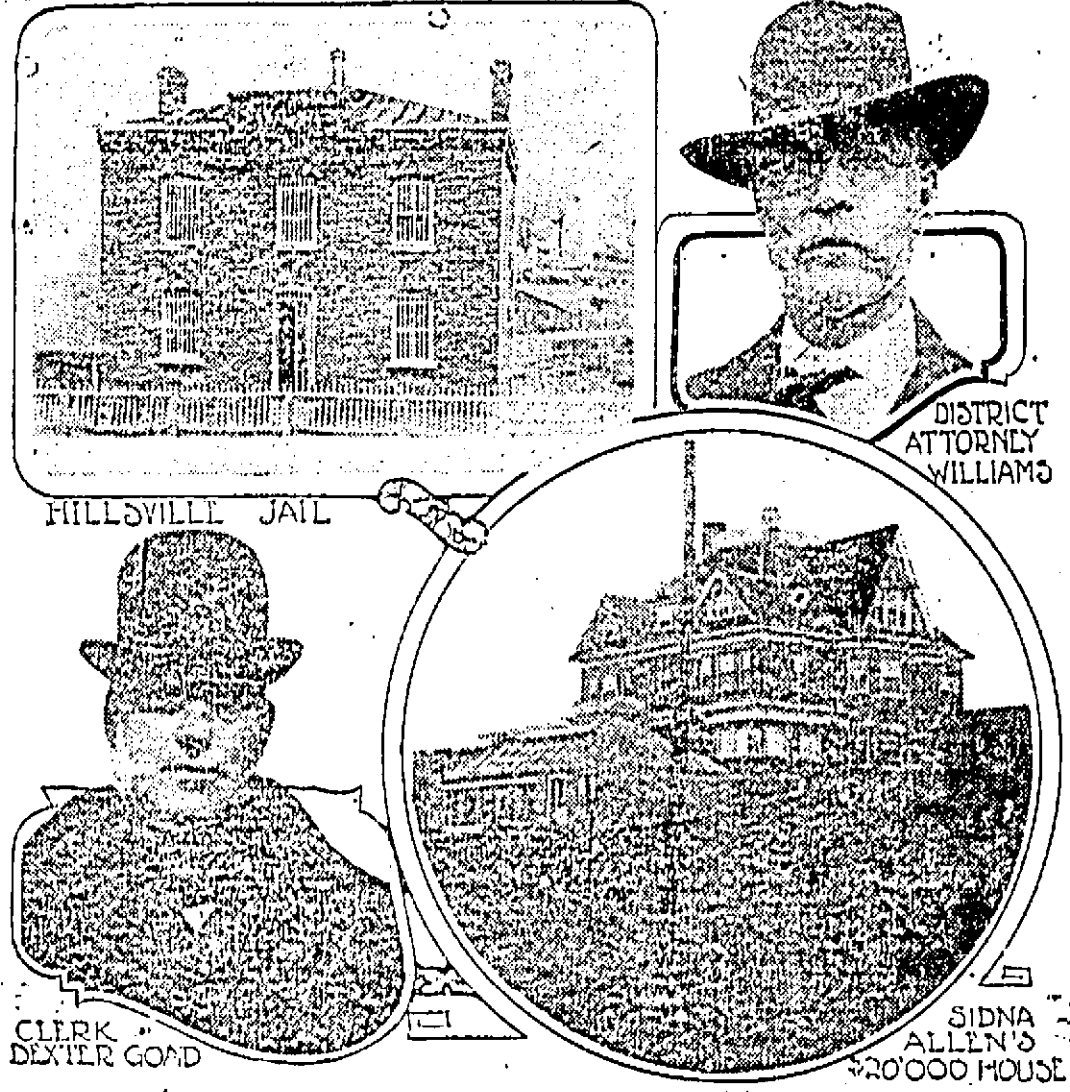

Still Hemmed In. One of the outlaws "still at large," Claude Stearns Allen, son of Floyd Allen, is now believed to have defied his pursuers and to have left the region.

His uncle, Sidna Allen, and his cousin, Wesley Edwards, and Fred Edwards are still supposed to be hemmed in the narrow space on the south side of the Blue Ridge against which the detectives are centering their efforts.

Edwards at Roanoke. Sidna Edwards was captured and placed in the Hillville jail is now safe in jail at Roanoke with the other three prisoners. Detective Seltz says that while they were going down on the train last night, Edwards admitted that he passed a pistol to his uncle Floyd at the door of the court house on the day of the shooting.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED SHOE WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE

Lynn, Mass., March 25.—Fifteen hundred operatives in twenty-four shoe factories in this city went on strike today. The strikers are members of the United Shoe Workers of America.

SCENES AND PRINCIPALS IN HILLVILLE SHOOTING OUTRAGE. Hillville, Va.—District Attorney Williams, of Richmond, has taken full charge of the running of ground of the $20,000 home of Sidna Allen, about eight miles from here, was first thought to be the place in which the outlaws had barricaded themselves. He is a rugged type himself, but a determined fighter, and feels that his mountain friends will help him to run down the Allen crowd structure of two stories and in this

IS ANNIVERSARY OF NOTABLE WAR EVENT

Gen. James Bintliff, Former Editor of Gazette, Commanded Regiment in Petersburg Attack Forty-seven Years Ago.

"This is a notable war day anniversary, for forty-seven years ago today, March 25, Gen. Lee made his last desperate attempt to break General Grant's line at Petersburg, Va.," said a veteran. "The late Confederate, Gen. John B. Gordon, who lectured in Wisconsin on several occasions, was chosen to make the attempt, and given about 15,000 of the best soldiers in the army of northern Virginia to do the work. The attack was made before daylight, the union forces, being surprised. The federal pickets were captured without firing a gun. Then the confederates rushed through the main line of works in front of Fort Steadman, worked in contempt of that fort, taking a larger number of prisoners. Other forces attempted to capture Fort Hancock, named in honor of Col. Frank Hancock of Wisconsin, and other posts, but by that time Gen. Parke had his command in such shape that Gen. Gordon and his large force was checked, and after a great deal of hard fighting and heavy losses on both sides, the confederates were driven back to their lines—all except about 4,000, who were made prisoners."

"Wisconsin had a part in that important engagement. The Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth regiments from this state being present, the former under command of the late Gen. Sam Harriman and the latter under the late Gen. James Bintliff, long editor of the Janesville Gazette. Lieut. Col. C. K. Moor, also of Wisconsin, commanded the 109th New York. The Fifth corps, in which the Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin served, made a forced march to take part in the battle, but was halted two miles away because the Ninth corps had won the contest. It was in this battle that Major Grady of Georgia, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, was killed. "That evening, a short time before sundown, President Lincoln reviewed the Fifth corps. It was his last review of an army corps. Three weeks from that day the president was assassinated, plunging the north into such grief as it had never before or has since known, and no portion of the people more sincerely mourned than the union army, that had come to love their commander-in-chief."

COMPLETE FILLING BRIDGE PIERS WITH CONCRETE.

Work on Last One Will Probably be Finished Today.—Sidewalk Deams and Railings on Two Spans. Today will probably see the completion of the concrete work on the pier of the Fourth Avenue bridge. Workmen this afternoon were filling the last tube just off the west bank of the river. Gravel for the concrete was being heated on the east bank and wheeled across the bridge on barrows. The steel beams which are to support a six foot concrete sidewalk on the outside of the north girder have been bolted and riveted to the two spans now in place and the iron railing also put in place.

DIVORCE CASE WAS ONLY MATTER OF IMPORTANCE.

Judge Grimm Will Have Three Weeks of Jury Cases at Monroe Beginning Tomorrow. One divorce case was the only important matter which came before Judge Grimm in the circuit court here this morning. Mrs. E. Kuhl was granted a divorce from William Kuhl on the grounds of desertion. Both parties live in this city. Judge Grimm left this morning for Monroe where he will be engaged for three weeks or more with the jury cases in the Green County Circuit Court. He does not expect to take up the cases for the court on the February calendar for the Rock County Circuit Court until after the middle of April.

LINK AND PIN SECTION MEN DEAF; ENGINEERS WARNED

Letters of Warning Posted Which Speak of Section Men With Muffled Ears and People on Crossings.

During February there were some serious accidents to individual engines and to trains, which were struck by locomotives. These men were on the track and owing to the cold weather had their ears covered up and did not hear the approaching trains, which is a very prevalent thing during the winter. It. Quayle, superintendent M. P. & N. Y., writes that all from and engineers should watch out for this, where ever there is a chance of being anyone on the track, as much as is consistent with their duty and prevent such accidents entirely if possible. Firemen should have their ears arranged when entering a city or town so that they can attend to this and will not have to attend to the fire.

Leaving Cab.

Master Mechanic Becker also writes along the same line. He repeats the instructions relative to the leaving of the engine cab and going up on the tank to take on water or putting in fire, while pulling into a station or passing over a highway crossing. Serious accidents have happened to persons crossing the tracks from the fireman's side who were not observed in time to avoid accident and in some cases the firemen were ignorant of accidents until they had been notified later. These things are both easily watched and would probably prevent a number of unnecessary accidents to both employees and outsiders.

Conductor Martin Carroll deadheaded to Fond du Lac this morning to resume work after a month's sickness.

Mechanic Joe Smith returned to work this morning after spending the last few weeks in California.

Mechanics Garbutt and Slevert are planning to take up airplane construction work as they do not have to put on pilots in that business. When it takes all night to get one on in good shape and then the first crossing takes it off, it's rather discouraging.

Edward Sullivan is laying off today on account of sickness.

Fireman Grant took engines 223 and 70 to Chicago to the shops there for a general overhauling Saturday night.

Timekeeper Frank Ward did not appear at the roundhouse this morning, owing to sickness, which is not expected to lay him up for long.

Mechanics T. J. Lawson and Haddock were laying off today.

Engineer J. M. Smith is laying off today and is being relieved by Engineer Starratt.

Johnson Platt, who was a visitor in Milwaukee last week returned to work this morning.

Considerable excitement was experienced in the roundhouse yesterday when Pipman Haddock and Huber Goslin were struck by what they thought was a water spout. It turned out, however, to be only a stream of water under 120 pounds pressure in the hands of Hiram Green who was so busy engaged in washing engine 217 that he did not notice where that playful little stream was going. After he had driven Haddock half way through the wall of the roundhouse and knocked Goslin into one of the pits somebody broke the news to him and then he had to repeat the operation in self defense. The safety committee has done some good work in the local yards and deserves a great deal of praise but there are a few things which it has evidently overlooked.

CLINTON

Clinton, March 25.—Miss Myrtle Pangborn of Lake City, Minn., spent last week at her home here it being the week of the Spring vacation of the school where she is teaching. U. V. Two last Wednesday sold a high class buckeye mare to Chicago parties for $300.

Meritt J. Stephen left Thursday for Hope, Arkansas, he expects to be gone at least two weeks.

Charles Bennett came home Saturday evening from Wayland Academy, Denver, Colo., for a week's vacation. The United Works realized $23.00 from their supper Friday evening. Silver and it was used for the first time, the ladies certainly chose a very handsome pattern.

Seven lady bridge players of Beloit were the guests of the Clinton Bridge players last Thursday. The visiting ladies came at a little past one on the train due here at 12:30, but which was late, they were met at the station by a committee and escorted to the commodious home of Alderman and Mrs. W. H. Northrop, where a delicious hot supper luncheon was served, after which the afternoon was devoted to bridge, the visitors returning to Beloit at six o'clock.

A letter from Mrs. F. C. Shaffer states that Mr. Shaffer has received a call to become pastor of the Baptist church at Fowler, Fresno, County, California, and that he has accepted the call temporarily and thinks possibly he will accept the place very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson of Janesville, spent Sunday here with their parents. Miss Chambers will spend the spring vacation with her sister in Chicago, while Miss Lloyd will remain here as it takes so much time on the road to go to her home at Yankton, S. Dakota.

Fred Hahn was taken to Beloit hospital Saturday evening for an operation for appendicitis.

Gevey and family moved their household goods to Janesville Friday. The State conference quartette will hold meetings at the Methodist church this week beginning Tuesday evening.

Law J. Smith returned Saturday morning from Oregon, where the family moved a few weeks ago.

OBITUARY.

HENRY BROWN DIES BY TAKING POISON

Long a Resident of Monroe He Drinks Carbolic Acid and Dies in Ease. ment of Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Monroe, Wis., March 25.—Henry Brown, a resident of Monroe and vicinity, ended his life at six o'clock Sunday morning in the basement of his home in the first ward by drinking carbolic acid. He arose early, as was his custom, and shortly after Mrs. Brown heard him groaning and in seemingly great distress in the furnace room. She hastily summoned medical aid but he died within a few minutes. No reason has been assigned for the deed.

Mr. Brown was a retired farmer, moving to his residence in this city from his farm home, one and a half miles east of Monroe, a year ago last fall. He was fifty years of age, leaving him, beside his wife, are three sons: William Brown, who took a position as assistant dayman at the Parental School in Chicago upon completing his university course at Madison a few months ago, and Harry and Herbert Brown of this city. A brother, Joseph Brown, lives at Elk Point, Kansas. The funeral will be held Wednesday from the home, but the hour has not yet been set.

BOXING CONTEST IS NEXT ON SCHEDULE

Three Cracker Jack Matches Arranged for Tuesday Evening at West Side Rink.

Kid De Munn, the clever little Holvidere boxer, is ready for his bout with Billy Morehead of Milwaukee tomorrow night before the Milwaukee Athletic club. De Munn, since his recent victory over Suller Burke, in the first round of the last contest of the local club, has been putting in some hard work, and is reported to be faster than ever. Morehead, in the meantime, has the advantage of several years' experience in the squared circle and is known to be a stayer from the tap of the song. It will make a good, hard match.

Two special cars on the Interurban have been engaged to bring De Munn's friends from Holvidere and a good-sized contingent from Milwaukee will also be present. Morehead will be remembered by local fans as the youth who slashed Neil Larson of Evansville so unmercifully here two years ago. Jack Regan of Milwaukee meets Phil Harrison, a Chicago boy that is rapidly forging to the front in the boxing game. Ben Bogardus from the Illinois city, meets Frankie Sider, an ambitious youngster from Sycamore, in the opening contest.

CARDINALS SECURE
GAME FROM BADGERS

University Aggregation Outplayed by Local Team Which Won by a Score of 29 to 10.

The Janesville Cardinals added another victory to their string of successes in the game with the University Badgers at the west side rink last Saturday evening. The score at the end of the first half stood 15 to 4 in favor of the locals and at the end of the game was 29 to 10 in their favor. The University players seemed at a loss how to work against the whirlwind playing of the Cardinals. Not until the very end of the game did they seem to come to their own and then they threw a number of baskets in quick succession making 12 points in the last half.

The Janesville team was fast at the start of the game and played consistently throughout. Cunningham and Duffey did some fast work for Janesville and Langdon played a star game at guard.

The game Saturday will be the next to the last game of the year. The last contest will be arranged for a date the latter part of the week and will be with a team worthy of playing the final game of the season with the Janesville team. The line up and score Saturday:

Janesville	Pos.	Madison
Cunningham	rr.	Schmuel
Duffey	lf.	Bradish
Langdon	c.	Cibellus
Langdon	rg.	Curtin
Gresham	lg.	Gillis

Field goals—Cunningham 6; Duffey 3; Langdon 3; Schmuel 3; Gills 2; Cunningham 2; Bradish 1; Cibellus 1; Curtin 1.

Free throws—Duffey 1.

Referee—Carlo.

Sportmen of State Want Law Repealed Which Transfers License Money to General Fund.

(Special to this Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., March 25.—It is practically certain that the next legislature will be asked to repeal that section of the game laws which transfer the unexpended portion of the income of the state fish and game department to the general fund. Last year this excess was $122,255.62. Sportmen from many parts of the state have written State Game Warden John A. Shultz, expressing their disapproval of this law. They want all such receipts of the department, most of which are hunting license fees, to be used in securing better and more efficient supervision.

Resolutions concerning this opinion were passed by the Wisconsin Farmers' Institute at Neenah, last week. The text of the following:

"We ask a larger place for nature study in the courses of study offered in the agricultural college of the university, and that the subject of the economic value of birds and their protection have a place in all institute work."

"That we heartily approve of the educational work recently started by the fish and game warden department, calculated to show the importance of protection of song birds, as well as our fish and game, and that all monies collected for hunting licenses should be expended by this department in the extension of information of the economic value of mammals, fish and birds of the state."

The only portion of the department's income which it is not required to turn into the general fund is a sum given to the state fish commission with which to gather minnows left in the sloughs of the Mississippi river, which the commission distributes for propagation purposes in various parts of the state.

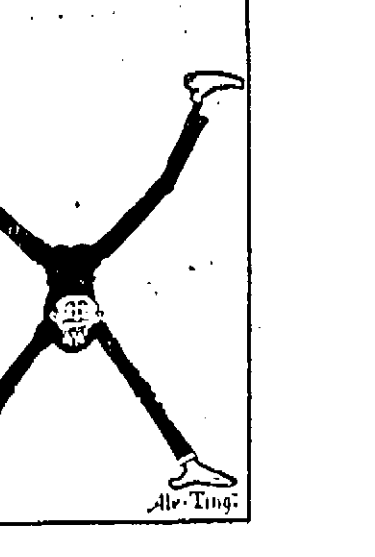

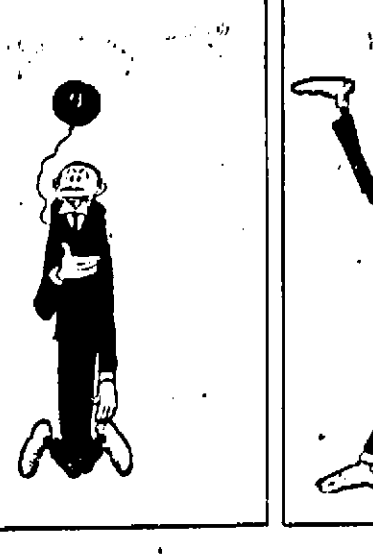

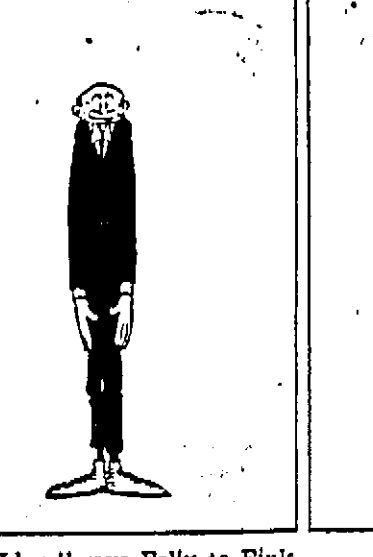

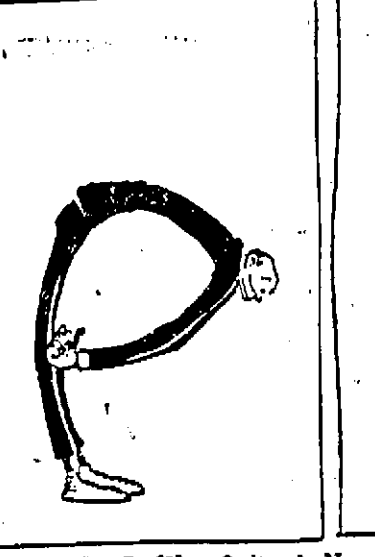

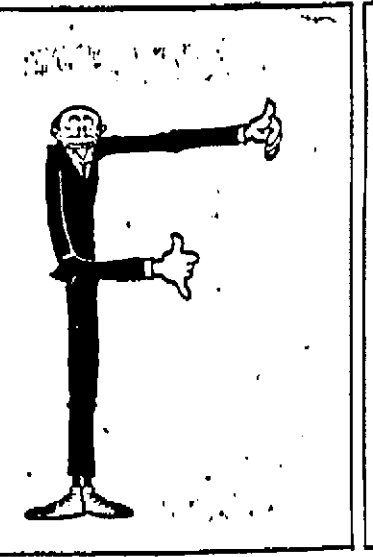

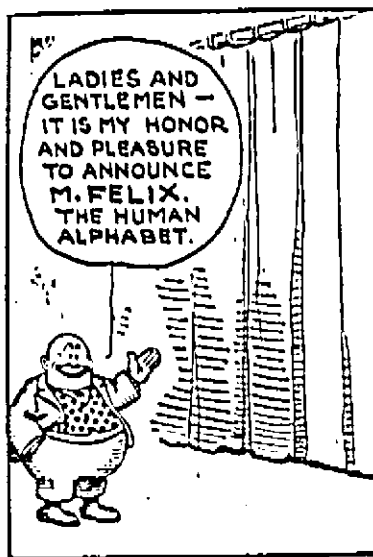

Because the cost of maintenance of the fish and game department is borne by persons desiring the privilege to hunt or fish in the state, and is not incident from direct tax levied upon the people, the opinion is growing that all such money should be used for the protection of fish and game. At present each warden covers a territory averaging 300 square miles.

At The Theatre

Lyman H. Howe's "Our Navy." The Hudson River was the great marine amphitheatre where the U. S. Government staged a most impressive naval spectacle last November.

New York City might be described as the gallery from which nearly 3,000,000 people gazed upon the wonders of the largest array of battleships ever assembled under the Stars and Stripes.

The government authorities granted special facilities to Lyman H. Howe to photograph the memorable scene, because of the skill and ability of his camera men they were permitted to accompany the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. George von L. Meyer, on the official reviewing ship, Dolphin.

From this commanding position the fleet was cinematographed as it rested at anchor while the Dolphin steamed through the triple columns of grim dreadnoughts more powerful than any other warships in the world.

More than 27 miles of battleships, cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers and submarines—all of them fully adorned in "full dress"—were reviewed.

While the first day's scenes of the review promise thrills of admiration, the climax comes in the views shown when the mighty armada, led by the anchor and the steady procession sweeps down the Hudson at full speed.

A fifty knot gale which created the waves with foam serves only to enhance the admiration of the splendid spectacle.

The realism of the scenes which Mr. Howe will present at the Myers Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, March 26 and 27, makes Wednesday cannot be described. There is a fascination in these portentous ships of limitless strength that makes every true American heart beat faster because of the patriotism they inspire.

New wonders of the Grand River Canon, Colorado; superb views of Alpine glaciers in ascending majestic peaks; points above the clouds, the flight of a hydroplane through water and air, a pictorial tour revealing the splendor of art and history in Rome, Pisa and Florence, the marble quarries of Carrara, daring Italian horse-manship, and hunting by aeroplane are but a few of the many other scenes of vital interest showing the very latest achievements of human endeavor.

The barometric depression that prevailed over Texas on Saturday moved northward over Sunday and has passed off over the Atlantic coast. It was attended by unusually heavy rains in the lower Mississippi valley, Ohio valley, the southeastern states and middle Atlantic states.

A barometric depression that has been moving slowly eastward over the Canadian Rockies is now in the Red River valley and is accompanied by clouds throughout the northwest, and light snows in northern Minnesota and North Dakota. The southerly winds in its front will produce a wave of warmer weather, with thawing in the central states today.

For this vicinity the weather promises to be unsettled, with rain or snow tonight or Tuesday. It will be warmer this afternoon and tonight, but cooler Tuesday, after the disturbance in the northwest has passed and the northwest winds following it replace the southerly winds in its front.

ELECTION LAWS.

This state is in the midst of the chaotic condition relative to the interpretation of the state election laws. Secretary of state, attorney-general, and even laymen politicians have tried their hands at solving the problem without avail. Its meaning remains as much a mystery as does the riddle of the Sphinx of Egypt. The Milwaukee Free Press comments on the law and its effect as follows, and urges radical changes.

"The ballots for the primary and general elections should be as simple as possible, so as to be comprehended easily by the voter in order that his vote may not be lost through mistakes.

"There are strong reasons, too, why the counting of the ballots should be a simple process, with a minimum of chances for mistakes so that there need be no delay in announcing the results.

"Neither of these conditions is now met by the multiplicity of the state primary and election laws, often confusing, sometimes conflicting by reason of amendments, changes and new laws, which cannot be made to fit in with old laws.

"What is needed is a thorough revision and simplification of the election laws of the state."

THE TRUTH?

Wisconsin republicans, especially the followers of Senator La Follette, will be interested in the following statement by Walter L. Houser, the attitude of the Roosevelt forces toward La Follette changed as soon as there became evident a widespread growth of the progressive movement and the possibility of Senator La Follette's nomination.

"Then 'big business,' said Mr. Houser, 'represented by Munsey, Perkins and others of higher and lesser note who always opposed La Follette, entered the contest and introduced Col. Roosevelt as a candidate and are still actively supporting him. The people will judge in the light of the facts whether or not Roosevelt has kept true faith with La Follette or is doing so with the real progressives of the country.'

THE PITIFUL SEVEN.

According to an exchange the "seven little governors"—those of New Hampshire, Gloucester, of West Virginia, Osborn of Michigan, Hadley of Missouri, Aldrich of Nebraska, Carey

of Wyoming, Stubbs of Kansas—whose invitation to seek a third term openly was accepted by Mr. Roosevelt as "the voice of the people," are having very poor success in keeping their promises to the gentleman from Oyster Bay.

Housar finds himself helpless in his own state, Gloucester is facing certain defeat in his. Osborn has been practically deposed from party leadership. Hadley's deposition is proceeding. Aldrich is finding it impossible to hold Nebraska against Taft and La Follette. Carey has little hope of carrying his own state and is depending on his personal support. Stubbs is having lots of trouble.

Add to these disasters the fact that

Senator Dixon finds Montana slipping away from him and has come to a realization that if Mr. Taft gets the Montana delegates that is the end of his own hopes of re-election to the senate, and we get some idea of the political wrecks with which the effort to stampede the nation to Mr. Roosevelt for a third term is growing the landscape.

Add further that Mr. Roosevelt is now conceded not more than ten votes in the national convention from his own New York—that Mr. Roosevelt will present the anomaly of a candidate supported by only a small minority of the delegates from his own state—and we get a picture of the collapse of the Roosevelt balloon.

The truth is that the Roosevelt candidacy has fallen flat. Mr. Roosevelt's bugle call aroused only the devotees of political vaudeville. That truth is illustrated by the troubles and disappointers of the seven little governors and of other Roosevelt whoop-ers who had anything political to lose.

THE WATER WORKS.

One of the questions to be voted on at the coming April election is that of the purchase of the Janesville Water company by the city. It is a matter that can not be dealt with lightly and one which should be most carefully considered before accepted. It means the bonding of the city for a large amount of money, something at least over three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, means increased taxes without any real gain to the water-users that can be discovered. The problem is worthy of debate and the Gazette would be glad to have persons disposed to write on this subject, both for and against, to make use of the columns of the paper. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and it is preferable they be published as signed, and not as "Fox Popul," or some other signature. From an economic point of view the purchase of the water works would be a mistake. It would mean increased taxes, as said before, and under the state law would really place the control in the hands of the State Railroad commission. They would fix the prices and according to their figures in the recent case brought before them and appealed to the circuit court, would not give a fair margin to the city for owning the plant and certainly does not decrease the rates to the consumer. Think it over before deciding to increase your taxes and saddle the city with another burden.

Now that the funds have been raised for the purchase of the West Side park and it is to be preserved for the future use of upbuilding Janesville, the next thing to do is to get lucky and secure conventions who will utilize the big hall for convention purposes.

How about band concerts during the summer? With all this revision of the city ordinances why not draw up one that will give the city a chance to make a cash subscription for such concerts each summer? An appropriation for the use of the whole people paid for by the people.

They are still doing things over in China that they might well forget how to do. Killing foreigners means trouble for the whole country and the United States will not be slow to avenge the death of its citizens.

This delayed spring weather is something that troubles the average householder, but when it does come and the days are warmer, my what an epidemic of housecleaning there will be.

The Lenten season is soon to be over and by that time it is expected the real spring weather will have arrived. It has been seriously delayed somewhere.

dential choice. The Hoosier state is

A Dialogue of Memory Exercises.

Chicago Examiner: "The discovery that a ridiculously small minority of the girls at Wesleyan know the words of 'The Star Spangled Banner' seems to have given rise to much uneasiness in patriotic circles, especially among those who themselves are similarly the dilemma.

Unhappily what is true of the one is equally applicable to the other. How many people in or out of college know the words of 'America'? For that matter, how many people should be required to know them? And who

HAS MADE CIRCLES
IN HIS DECISIONS

Talks About Election Laws but Really Says Nothing That Can Be Considered as Final.

That the question as to the legality of printing the names of La Follette and Wilson under the names of the delegates to be elected at the April election, brought up by County Clerk Lee, is puzzling the legal authorities of the state is evidenced by the following decision of Attorney General Baneroff sent to District Attorney Dunwiddie who made application to Secretary of State Frazar for advice on the subject. Mr. Baneroff travels around in a nice little circle in the question where it was in the first place. His opinion is as follows:

March 21, 1912.
 Stanley Dunwiddie,
 District Attorney,
 Jansville, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir:
 You state that the names of certain candidates for delegates at large certified to your county clerk by the secretary of state as duly nominated have after their names the words "Wilson delegate," or "Roosevelt delegate," etc., and you ask whether the county clerk should put such designation of the ballots following the candidates' names.

Section 39 of the statutes (chapter 613, laws of 1911) which is construed by this department to be the section that must be complied with in the nomination of delegates at large, provides that the nomination shall be made by nomination papers containing the name of the candidate, etc., and "the party or principle he represents, if any expressed in not more than five words."

Section 33 of the statutes (chapter 483, laws of 1907) provides that the secretary of state shall transmit to each county clerk a certified list containing the name and post office address of each person for whom nomination papers have been filed in a convention for delegates to national convention have been filed in his office, entitled to vote for at such election, together with a designation of the office for which he is a candidate and the party or principle he represents.

Section 41 of the statutes (chapter 508, laws of 1907) provides that it shall be the duty of the county clerk to provide printed ballots for every election and to cause to be printed in the appropriate ballot the name of every candidate whose name has been duly certified to or filed with him.

Under these provisions it seems clear that it is the duty of the secretary of state to certify with the name of each nominee "party or principle he represents" and that it is the duty of the county clerk to print such name and party or principle represented on the official ballot.

Very truly yours,
 Attorney General.

W. S. Briggs Owns Up To Taking Cigars From Van Houten and Dalton Bar—Agrees to Make Good.

W. S. Briggs, a piano tuner who has been playing his trade in the city for several weeks, confessed Saturday evening to Chief Appleby that he had engaged in a profitable auxiliary occupation—that of stealing expensive cigars and selling them. The specific charge against him was taking sixteen or twenty boxes of cigars from the Van Houten and Dalton bar-room, 117 West Milwaukee street, the police were taken custody by the police after a short search, but at first he denied the offense. When confronted with the evidence he admitted it. This was secured by following him and taking him to the bar where the cigars had been sold and returned them to their owners and action against Briggs was withheld on condition that he make good the losses incurred by his customers.

Warden of State Prison at Waupun Speaks to Two Large Audiences Yesterday.

About two hundred men attended the meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, addressed by Warden Woodward of the State Penitentiary at Waupun. In his address the warden brought out the problems with which he had to deal in this position and the results which had been already recorded. During his short administration there have been numerous changes for the better in the institution and many of the old fashioned methods of mistreating the inmates of the prison have been abolished. The new idea in prison management he says is not to treat the men like dogs but to show them human kindness.

Nearly all of those present in the afternoon, and many more crowded the Baptist church to the doors last evening to hear Mr. Woodward in a second address on the subject.

Jansville Young Lady to Have Principal Feminine Role in Senior Play at Beloit College.

Miss Emma Shoemaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Shoemaker, of the town of Jansville, has been selected to take the leading feminine role in the senior class play at Beloit college. The name of the play which will be presented this year is "A Rose of Plymouth Town," and Miss Shoemaker will take the part of "Rose de la Noye." The play will be presented at Wilson opera house, Beloit, on the evening of May 1st.

Her choice for the title role of the play comes as a distinct honor to Miss Shoemaker, who has been prominent in rhetorical and dramatic work throughout her college career. She won the Mabel Howatson prize for declamatory speaking in her freshman year and has taken prominent parts in the Shakespeare productions which are given annually by the Shakespeare club, a young ladies' organization of Beloit college.

She graduated from Jansville high school in 1908 and during her course achieved high honors in declamatory work. She was three times winner of the Loomis medal for declamations and represented the school on two occasions at the state contest. She took a leading role in the high school class play.

Alva Maxfield and Party of Friends Nearly Struck by Mineral Point Train Sunday Afternoon.

Owing to the faulty construction of the crossing at Jackson street, over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul tracks, a horse in a team belonging to and driven by Alva Maxfield caught its hoof between the rail and plank and was thrown to the ground. Mr. Maxfield was accompanied by a party of six friends and was crossing the tracks just ahead of the Mineral Point passenger Sunday afternoon. The train was brought to a stop but a few feet from the rig and the horse was extricated, but not until it was narrowly escaped all legs. It was a sharp escape all around, and if the train had been running south and not from the west a serious accident would doubtless have occurred.

County Clerk Lee received a letter today from an attorney at San Andreas, Cal., asking whether he could give information in regard to relatives of descendants of Joseph Washington, who died in that city a short time ago.

The letter stated that the man was known as Joe Wash but that his real name was supposed to be Joe Washington. The attorney stated that he had been informed that the man formerly had several brothers living in Jansville and thought that relatives might still be living here. The letter intimated that it would be worth while for any descendants in this city to communicate with him in regard to the estate of the deceased. The county clerk will furnish the name of the attorney.

HOG MARKET SLOW AND LOWER TODAY

Reaction Which Started Saturday Continued Today. Sheep Also Take A Decline.

Chicago, March 25.—Hogs continued on the downward slide this morning and prices generally averaged 5 cents below Saturday's prices. The trading was slow and packers seemed anxious to force prices to lower levels. The receipts were against the salemen as 58,000 head were in the pens for the Monday trade.

The sheep market also suffered a depression which was more pronounced than in the case of the hog market. Prices were forced downward ten and fifteen cents in most cases. Receipts were heavy at 33,000.

The cattle market was steady and strong with active trading. Quotations were as follows:

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEYS CAUSE MAJORITY OF MONTH'S FIRES

Madison, Wis., March 25.—Defective chimneys again led the list of known causes of fires in Wisconsin during February, according to State Fire Marshal T. M. Purcell's monthly report. These numbered thirty-one, causing damage of $12,855 upon which was involved insurance of $81,450. From the 202 fires reported during the month, damage of $425,445 was caused and the insurance involved was $705,820. The most disastrous single fire was one caused by a defective elevator motor, causing a loss of $50,000. Unknown fires resulted in loss of $191,205. The department made 161 inspections during February. Gasoline, rubbish, defective stoves and unsafe buildings were most common causes of complaint. Many written orders to tear down buildings were served.

RAILROADS UNITE IN ORDER TO PREVENT ANY TRESPASS

Madison, Wis., March 25.—Gov. F. B. McGovern has joined with the governors and officials of state public utility commissions of a number of states in giving attention to the necessity of measures against trespass on railways. President Darius Miller of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy recently wrote to the governors of thirteen states traversed by the Burlington lines, asking the co-operation of the state authorities in securing the enactment and enforcement of laws against trespass. It is shown that over half of the people killed annually by the railways are trespassers. Gov. McGovern wrote that the subject is an important one but not a simple one for the legislatures. He said he had called the attention of the state railroad commission to it, and that he would give the subject his personal attention.

Chester M. Dawes, general counsel for the Burlington, is preparing a draft of a proposed bill to prohibit trespassing.

VOTE TO RE-BUILD WILLOWDALE SCHOOL

Decision Reached Without Opposition at District Meeting Friday Afternoon.

At a meeting of the voters in the Willowdale school district last Friday afternoon it was unanimously voted to proceed with the rebuilding of the school building which was totally destroyed by the cyclone of Nov. 11, last. Measures will be taken at once to secure state aid and an application for $2,000 will be filed. Nothing definite has been arranged as yet in regard to the plans for the building but it will undoubtedly be of the same type as the former structure, which was one of the best rural school buildings in the county. James Crane, clerk of the school board for the district, notified Supt. Antield regarding the action of the district.

School is at present being held in an old store building which has been fitted up for temporary use. There are between thirty and forty pupils enrolled in the school, which is also one of the largest in the county in point of attendance. Miss Edith Clapp, of this city, is the teacher.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TEST CASE IN NEW YORK COURT

Expect Ruling as to Whether Practitioner May Heal as a Religious Function Without Violating Law.

New York, March 25.—The case of Willis Vernon Cole, the Christian Science healer, who is charged with alleged violation of the medical laws, was called before Justice Sanbury for a second trial. The first trial ended in a jury disagreement. The result of the trial is awaited with keen interest by members of the Christian Science church throughout the country as the case is designed to obtain a ruling from the higher courts as to whether a Christian Science practitioner is legally entitled to attempt the cure of ill as a religious function and is not doing so in violation of the medical laws.

This is About Clothes That Wear For Men Who Care

For more than twenty years I have sold clothing in this town, and during that time I have probably sold as much, if not more, than any other one man. And among the many hundreds who have dealt with me, I doubt if there is one who can truthfully say that I "stung him," or if every wilfully misrepresented article. Sometimes clothes have not been just as they should have been—But I have always stood ready to make good anything that was not as ordered, either in the cloth, trimmings or workmanship.

MY SUCCESS

depends on, in this town, in doing just as my customer wants, for this is not a great city where there is a large transient trade and who after once selling you, never expects to see you again. I must make good with every customer, for I have found that a pleased customer is a much better asset than Printers' Inks. I certainly have pleased the bulk of them, for my business has been steadily increasing since I started it, and almost every day someone comes in saying that Mr. So and So sent me here.

MY GUARANTEE

really means every Suit, Overcoat or Trouser you buy, must satisfy you. There is no limit to that guarantee except to the limit of your satisfaction. You know what satisfies you, and whatever you want I will give you. I judge by your idea—not mine. I insist upon assuming the responsibility for your satisfaction, from the time you receive a garment until your profitable experience again prompts you to entrust your appearance to me.

You cannot get anything from me but good ALL WOOL fabrics. The careful manner in which we tailor, demands materials of the best quality. Your requirements cannot be too exacting. If a coat front should show the least sign of breaking, or lose its original good shape, I want to replace it. The lining, too, will wear as long as the cloth, or I will reline any garment returned to us—Free.

Positively a perfect fit is guaranteed you, or I do not want you to take it, as I would be the loser. Your satisfaction is my success. That's why I prefer to have a suit returned, rather than retained, if it does not reflect credit upon you or me.

MY LINE

includes all of the very newest, both in imported and domestic wools, it is so large that it embraces almost every weave and every shade—it's bewildering to see so many—more than you ever saw before all at one time.

MY PRICES

are low, considering the quality that you get, start at $18.00 and keep going upwards. Everything marked in plain figures and one price and only one price to everybody. There is never any haggling over the price for I will get what they are worth or will not sell them. Wouldn't you feel safer where you knew you were getting a square deal, than where they talk peaches and hand you the lime?

COME IN ANYWAY

and learn what is right—you will not be urged to buy—my goods and prices are my silent salesman. I will be glad to see you at any time at 58 So. Main.

Yours,

H. V. ALLEN The All-Wool Store

N. B.—Can take orders for Easter Suits up to March 31, and guarantee delivery, for I have a thousand tailors ready to work for me. Also have 2 undervest shirts, (not miffs) one 39, one 36, and both bargains if they fit a man 5 ft. 6 or 7 in. high.

Planning the Housecleaning.

HOUSECLEANING, in its old-time meaning, is becoming more and more a thing of the past, like stoves that burn wood, and oil lamps, and such inconveniences of archaic times. With hardwood floors, and rugs, and vacuum cleaners, and gas or electric ranges, and very possibly, the house heated from a central plant, the old-time twice-a-year-upheaval of the entire house is no longer necessary.

Then, too, other things besides labor-saving helps enter into living today to simplify the housecleaning problem. The modern woman no longer keeps a lot of things for which she has no use, to be handled every time housecleaning time comes round. When she is through with clothing or furniture or books or magazines, she disposes of them. And thus her house is practically clear of rubbish.

But with the most practical, up-to-date method of living, some work in the nature of housecleaning has to be done, as the spring comes on. And the time is drawing near to think upon the subject.

And the first thing to do is to think. Thought should always precede action, if the action is to be to the point. A woman should take sufficient time to deliberately go over mentally all that is to be done, and to plan out her housecleaning campaign as carefully as a general plans a battle.

She should plan it so there will be no confusion in the work, so that the rooms that are cleaned will not be tramped through and upset when cleaning other rooms. She should take into consideration the various groups of work that must be done. There is not only scrubbing, and cleaning paint, and beating carpets to be done; but there are clothes to be put away from moth, furniture to be re-upholstered, or, perhaps, stain and varnish. The window shades all over the house may need cleaning. All the work should be planned, so that it will be done at the psychological moment, and not so soon or so late that it gets entangled with other work, and causes double labor. For instance, there is no use in getting the clothes all nicely put away from moth in a room, where they will have to be handled all over again when the room is cleaned. One housekeeper, who cleans house without much planning, puts her clothes all carefully away in bags and hangs them in the attic. Then, when the attic is cleaned, they all have to be moved.

The principles of efficiency need to be applied to housecleaning quite as much as to running a factory or making locomotives. Don't make two movements to do a piece of work, when, with a little forethought, one movement will do.

All this means thinking. But if a woman will sit down with pencil and paper, and jot down what has to be done, group it, classify it, follow mentally each task, and dovetail all parts together, so that there are no loose ends and useless going backward and forward, she will find her housecleaning going as easily and satisfactorily as a boat slides down its slide into the water. And if it is done in this thorough-going, business-like way, much of the discomfort and tiresomeness of it is taken out.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THERE is a certain reform which I should very much like to see some fashion magazine take up. I call for it as spokesman of many similarly minded folks. We would like to see at least one fashion magazine banish the ranks of deceitfully beautiful ladies who now adorn their pages, and fill their places with truly ordinary folks. Then perhaps we might get a notion how all these gowns would really look on us—the common people.

Of course, you have noticed how beautiful all these ladies are. They always have wonderful figures, fascinating wavy hair, and charming oval faces, and such a style! A neat bag draped on any one of them would look attractive. Consequently, if you are not a very discriminating person, and do not thoroughly understand the subject of clothes, you are in danger of being seriously ensnared by these charming deceivers, and of continuing their gowns with their woe.

For instance, you see a sweet little lady in a crisp blue and white morning gown, a pink rose thrust in her belt and one on each cheek, her hair in a soft mop at the nape of her neck with little ringlets escaping here and there; she is pictured as sitting in a comfortable wicker chair with a book in her lap and a box of candy on the wicker table beside her. Enchanted by the tone ensemble of the picture, the crispness, the freshness, the summer-morning-ness of the whole thing, you decide that you must have a blue and white morning gown like that, and buy the pattern.

And alas, it is only when your dressmaker has the gown cut that you begin to realize that the lovely lines which the sweet lady of the rose displayed belonged to her and not to the gown; and that there is altogether too much fullness in the model for your already redundant figure—in short that you have been grossly deceived by a pretty face and a clever artist.

We were looking at a magnificently dressed young person on the cover of one of the recent fashion magazines. "What a lovely gown!" someone said. "And then, as we examined it more closely to see what made the gown so pretty, two of us actually choked together, as they do on the stage, 'It isn't the gown, it's the dimple in the lady's elbow.'"

Another fashion magazine is very fond of pointing out that it is bad taste for women to wear all these hats and gowns which we are prone, how much more attractive, we are assured, it would be for us all to do our hair in the simple styles. The magazine then gives pictures of the ways in which ladies who display their cultures to us are the possessors of perfectly regular features which could stand the most severe styles of cutting, and are furthermore blessed with masses of luxuriantly curling hair which would look well if wound up and fastened with three hair pins.

We don't ask for homely ladies in the fashion magazines. We are not that ourselves, or at least we don't think so. What we want is some common ordinary folks just like us, with figure deficiencies to conceal and with faces such as you might see on the street. Maybe we wouldn't like them if we got them. It is said that's a characteristic of our sex, but it might pay some fashion magazine to try.

Ownership of the Winds.

In 1300 some friars in Switzerland wished to build a windmill to save the labor of grinding corn by hand, but a neighboring lord who had bought the land around forbade them because he said he owned the winds. The bishop was appealed to, who said the winds belonged to the church.

In Different Circumstances.

"Hurry, dear!" exclaimed the husband. "The fire is gaining. We must get out. Haven't you got your clothes on?" "Oh, I can't go out this way," she screams. "I couldn't find anything to put on but my bathing suit, and I'm not going to face all that crowd in it!"

SOW the seed, then sit and wait. For sown to shine and rains to fall, And mourn the harvest comes so late Or fear it will not come at all.

Some single minded still work on. Nor stop to ask or understand. The rose-bloom of success is won. The harvest ripens at their hand.

HELPFUL HINTS.

To make ham tender, parboil and put to cook in a fireless cooker. Before serving, fry quickly until a golden brown. It will be tender, moist and altogether nice.

If a little vinegar is added to boiling fish it will keep it from falling to pieces. This will serve for cooking eggs in water, too.

A nice idea to follow, if boards are plenty, is to keep one especially for use in chopping or shredding onions. Burn a round letter O in the back and it will never be used for any other material.

An unusual combination for salad, but a good one, is sour pickles, peanuts and peas served with any desired salad dressing on lettuce, using a little onion juice in the dressing.

Another salad combination which is very delicious and most attractive in appearance is pears, almonds and candied cherries for garnish, using the French dressing.

Salad Dressing for Lettuce Sandwiches.—One egg yolk beaten light, add four tablespoons of melted butter, half teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of vinegar, red pepper to taste; stir without cooking. Spread on bread without butter. Place a piece of lettuce or a slice of cucumber on each for a sandwich filling.

Add a few almonds to a potato salad to add to its food value and make it more palatable.

A Billion Hellos.

In round numbers the system of the New York Telephone company consists of 626 central offices, 383,000 subscribers lines, 795,000 subscriber stations, 17,000 private branch exchanges, switchboards, and 36,000 local and toll trunk lines connecting the various central offices.

During the year 1911 we handled approximately 985,000,000 originating calls, of which about 470,000,000 were trunked to a second central office, thus involving the employment of a second operator in handling those calls. These figures represent an increase of approximately 9 1/2 per cent. over the originating traffic handled in 1910.—Telephone Review.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

A Neglected Aid to Housekeepers—Two Savory and Economical Dishes.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

A lecturer on home economics recently said that much more is being done for housekeepers than they appreciate or put into practice. This statement is altogether too true, for instance take the work done for them by the United States Department of Agriculture. Scarcely an interest of the housewife is overlooked and the bulletins issued grow more and more adapted to the average woman's needs for instruction.

However I have noticed that very little interest is shown at meetings of women when these bulletins are referred to and it is made plain how easily they may be secured.

Some women have an idea that the government bulletins are very scientific and dry reading. On the contrary the facts stated in their pages are the result of work of scientists and specialists, yet the phraseology is direct and simple and such as to give help to those who have no time, inclination or ability to gain this knowledge in any other way.

"The woman whose house becomes infested with any of the much dreaded insect pests will write to different publications and run to her neighbors and friends for advice as to how she may be rid of the troublesome intruder. If she would keep at hand the government bulletins on the subject she could refer to them and find the remedy at once."

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE OF LUXEMBURG

QUEEN OF HOLLAND

EUROPE NOW BOASTS TWO QUEENS.

Berlin, Germany.—Since the death of Queen Victoria, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, has, until up to a few days ago, held the honor of being the only reigning Queen in Europe. Now a little girl of 17 years comes to share this honor. She is officially known as sovereign Grand Duchess of Luxembourg. She is a high spirited girl and as Princess Marie, before the death of her father, Grand Duke of Luxembourg, who was popular over the continent. She will not attain her majority until her 18th birthday. In June, and until that time the regency will continue to be vested in the hands of her mother, who was entrusted therewith some four years ago, owing to the mental and physical paralysis of her husband.

Her father was a Lutheran, but the young Grand Duchess has been brought up in the faith of her mother as a Roman Catholic, to which church she saved 3,000 of her quarter million of subjects belong. She must, therefore, be noted as an addition to the members of the old world according to spiritual allegiance to the Pope.

Upon attaining her majority she will not only become head of the government of Luxembourg, but will inherit in the neighborhood of $50,000,000, known as the fortune of the House of Nassau.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

QUEER DOINGS AT BALTIMORE.

By A. W. MACY.

There were some queer doings at Baltimore eighty years ago. Witness this from Griffith's "Annals of Baltimore," published in 1833: "December 14 (1829), thirty-seven persons were drawn by one horse, in a car, planned by Mr. Ross Wilkins, of New Jersey, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at the rate of about ten miles per hour, or as fast as the horse could trot or gallop; which was done in the presence and to the astonishment of a multitude of spectators, who, not having witnessed such an exhibition could scarcely realize the effect." And "Peter Parley's First Book of History," published about the same time, says: "But the most curious thing at Baltimore is the railroad. This consists of iron bars laid along the ground, and made fast so that carriages with small wheels may run along them with facility. In this way, each horse will be able to draw as much as ten horses on a common road. A part of this railroad is already done, and if you choose to take a ride upon it, you may do so. You will mount a carriage something like a stage, and then you will be drawn along by two horses at the rate of twelve miles an hour."

HATS AND EFFICIENCY.

"Metal hats will be the correct thing; women's headgear will resemble the warrior's helmet," says a recent Associated Press dispatch. A few weeks ago I tried briefly to show the injury done by the heavy, tight fitting hats worn by most men, preventing free circulation and interfering with the nutrition of the brain, and suggested the wearing of light, easy fitting hats, and the discarding of the headgear as far as possible. Now Dr. George W. Galvin, founder of the emergency hospital of Boston, says, as reported in a recent dispatch: "I consider it a significant fact that more college girls wear no hats at all and only caps when the weather demands a covering for the head. Many women wonder why they can do more work than they could have done years ago. They will find the reason in the decrease in the size and weight of his hat." The only point in which I would disagree with Dr. Galvin is in his saying that "weather demands a covering for the head." The hair is ample covering, if it has not been kept chiefly through wearing a hat. "Keep the feet warm and the head cool" is a good health maxim.

SHOWER WAS GIVEN AT FOOTVILLE HOME

Mrs. F. C. Wells and Mrs. Frank Lowry Entertained for Miss Lydia Schumacher, Saturday.

Footville, March 25.—Mrs. F. C. Wells and Mrs. Frank Lowry entertained at the latter's home Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Lydia Schumacher, whose wedding to William Dornier of this place will take place at an early date.

Thirty young ladies of the Footville Christian church were entertained at the event Saturday, which was a miscellaneous shower.

The Lowry home was beautifully decorated in red and white and a very pleasant afternoon was spent. The bride-to-be received many useful and artistic gifts from her friends.

Poison Ivy.

In early autumn when children roam the woods they very frequently come in contact with poison ivy or poison oak. If the skin is wet from rain or perspiration one is more liable to be attacked. The poison may be conveyed by wood cut in the vicinity of the plant and handled by people who have not actually been near the plant. It also may be conveyed from one person to another by a bath towel or brush.

The first symptom noted is an intense itching, then the skin reddens and in a short time an eruption appears. This eruption frequently comes within an hour or two after contact with the poison, and sometimes not for a couple of days. Considerable swelling of the parts usually accompanies the eruptions, which are red and itchy. In some cases the eruption becomes pustular.

The poison runs a course of about two weeks, although secondary eruptions may follow for several weeks without fresh exposure.

The treatment consists in relieving the itching by applying some cooling lotion as lime water, a solution of baking soda or a mixture of lead water and laudanum.

Date Muffins

A New Way of Using Dates By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

The value of dates as a food is hardly appreciated. They are wholesome, nutritious, and when used in K-C Date Muffins, make a recipe that is appreciated by the entire family.

K-C Date Muffins

One-third cup butter; 1/2 cup sugar; 1 egg; 1/2 cup milk; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoons K-C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; scant 1/2 pound dates.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg, beaten light. Sift together three times the flour, baking powder and salt; add these to the first mixture, alternately with the milk; beat thoroughly and add the dates, stoned and cut in pieces. To bake, have a slow oven until the muffins double in bulk, then increase heat to bake and brown quickly. Muffins baked this way will be light, appetizing, and more easily digested.

This is only one of the many appetizing recipes found in the K-C Cook's Book.

The wonderful K-C Cook's Book is substantially built and printed in nine colors; contains ninety tested and easily-made recipes by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, of the world famous Boston Cooking School Magazine.

You can secure a copy FREE by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K-C Baking Powder to the James Mott Co., Chicago. Be sure to write name and address plainly.

Sprinkle a little Gold Dust in the water, and let the Gold Dust Twins do all the hard part of the task. Gold Dust starts to dissolve and rather the moment it strikes the water; it starts to cleanse the moment it comes in contact with the garment. It instantly softens the hardest water, saves rubbing, saves wear and tear on clothes, and does most of the work without your assistance.

Use Gold Dust next wash day, and have whiter, sweeter, cleaner clothes, with half the effort and in half the time.

Gold Dust is sold in 50-cent and 10-cent packages. The large package means greater economy.

SACRIFICE SUBJECT OF STRONG SERMON

REV. WILLMAN SPEAKS OF THE OBSERVANCE OF PASSION WEEK.

BUSINESS METHODS

Sermon Advises Use of Business Methods to Get Best Results From the Observance of Passion Week.

Rev. Willman of the Trinity Episcopal church delivered a strong sermon upon the subject of "a more excellent sacrifice" during the Passion week which is coming. He brought out the necessity and the advisability of making use of business methods in the observance of the week, which should mean so much to every church member, to enable us to get more good out of the experience.

In part he spoke as follows:

"We stand today before the opportunity of new sacrifices. Time was when people did not heed the observance of Passover and did not celebrate the anniversary of the last week in the life of Him who came to save the world. But it is different today and the Passion has been an annual part of the church service for so long that people are apt to slight it through its recurrence year after year and to let business affairs interfere with our getting the most good out of it.

"So as we are all engaged in business, let us keep Passion week in a business-like way. We want to make it a factor for good which will dominate our lives and leave an impression on our minds which will uphold us through the rest of the year. We want to make it a personal matter and not a question of form.

"In the pursuance of this idea let us take one incident in the life of our Lord and make it the center of our thoughts, so that it will stand out clear and well-defined in all its meaning before our eyes. Think on this incident in all its aspects and from all standpoints during the day whenever we happen to be. Then let us think God because in all of our business all day long you have been able to keep Him in your mind and have been able to remember God. Thus go on through the week with the true meaning of the Passion of Jesus Christ brought home to us in a business-like way, which may show its effects in an altered life.

"There are two lessons for the Passion week I would bring to attention, from the story of Cain and Abel. There is the lesson of the name. When the first son was born to Eve in the garden of Eden she named him Cain, meaning a possessor; the second son receiving the name of Abel, which meant vanity. Eve did not realize what the characters of these two sons would turn out to be and it was with great sorrow that she found out that the naming of her two sons was just exactly opposite to what it should have been. The painful fact was forced upon her that all things which we claim for our own, over which we announce our possession are not ours until we have given them to Jesus Christ and then taken them back with His blessing and for use in His cause on earth. Only through detachment are we able to possess things.

"The other lesson which we take from this story is that of the sacrifice. When the time for sacrifice came for the two brothers, Cain brought fruits and vegetables and placed them on the altar. Abel, who was a shepherd, came leading the very choicest lamb from his flock, and his offering was immediately consumed by heavenly fire, showing that it was acceptable, while Cain's lay untouched. Cain gave what he thought he could not use himself, what he did not deem suitable for other purposes. Abel brought the best that he had and offered it to the Lord with open heart.

"The lesson which we may take from this choice of sacrifices on the part of God is that He demands the best which we can give to Him. Did not He send the best that he had to redeem our sins—His own Son? Since God's best was given to us on Calvary should we begrudge anything we have? Daily we are meeting temptations of sorts and characters and either failing or overcoming them. If we fail before them we are begrudging what we have to offer God. God does not want the remnants and will not accept them. He wants the best of your years, your days, your weeks, and your whole life. He wants your Sundays well spent, your religious life earnest and powerful. Stop and think of what you have been giving to God and then feel ashamed. Think of the business interests which have come between you and what you know to be your duty. Think of the pleasures which you have allowed to keep you from giving your best.

"These are only a few of the lessons which we may get from this story, the lesson of the names and that of the spirit of sacrificing our best to God."

POSTMASTERS PLAN FOR ANNUAL MEETING

President C. L. Valentine of State Association at Madison Saturday to Aid in Arrangements.

Postmaster C. L. Valentine, president of the Wisconsin Association of Postmasters, was in Madison Saturday to meet with the committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual meeting of the association which will be held in Madison, August 21 and 22. According to usual custom of the Postmasters, Senator Robert M. La Follette and Congressman Nelson, congressman from the district in which the convention will be held were invited to attend the meeting and to give addresses. It was also decided by the executive committee to extend an invitation to some representative of the postmaster general's department at Washington to give an address.

Other matters for the gathering were also considered and complete arrangements and program will be announced later. It is expected that there will be a large attendance at the conference this year as the one last season at Green Bay was attended by 200 men. The members of the executive committee are: C. L. Valentine, Janesville, president of the association; Postmaster Earl S. Welch, Eau Claire, past president; Postmaster A. G. Kurz, Green Bay, secretary and treasurer and Postmaster W. A. Devine, Madison.

SUFFRAGISTS ONCE VOTED AT ELECTION

Wisconsin Women Took Advantage of the Law and Cast Their Ballots in Many Cities.

Rock county women who are enthusiastic over the prospect of equal suffrage will be interested to learn that if the women of Wisconsin vote at the spring elections a year from now, as many of them expect to, it will not be the first time that women of the state have voted at the regular town and municipal elections. In the spring of 1887 thousands of women in different parts of the state offered their ballots, which were received and in many places counted. This was previous to the meaning of the supreme court on the meaning of the law passed by the legislature in 1885 and confirmed by the people in 1886 giving women the right to vote at any election pertaining to school matters.

The law did not specify for what officials or concerning what measures women might vote. According to the law, as quoted above, there was room for difference of opinion as to its meaning. Women suffragists were advised by members of the legislature who voted for the law and others that at "any election pertaining to school matters" women might vote for all officials, which practically gave them the full suffrage as it is enjoyed by men. At the spring elections in 1887 many women of the state did actually vote for the full list of officials just as men did.

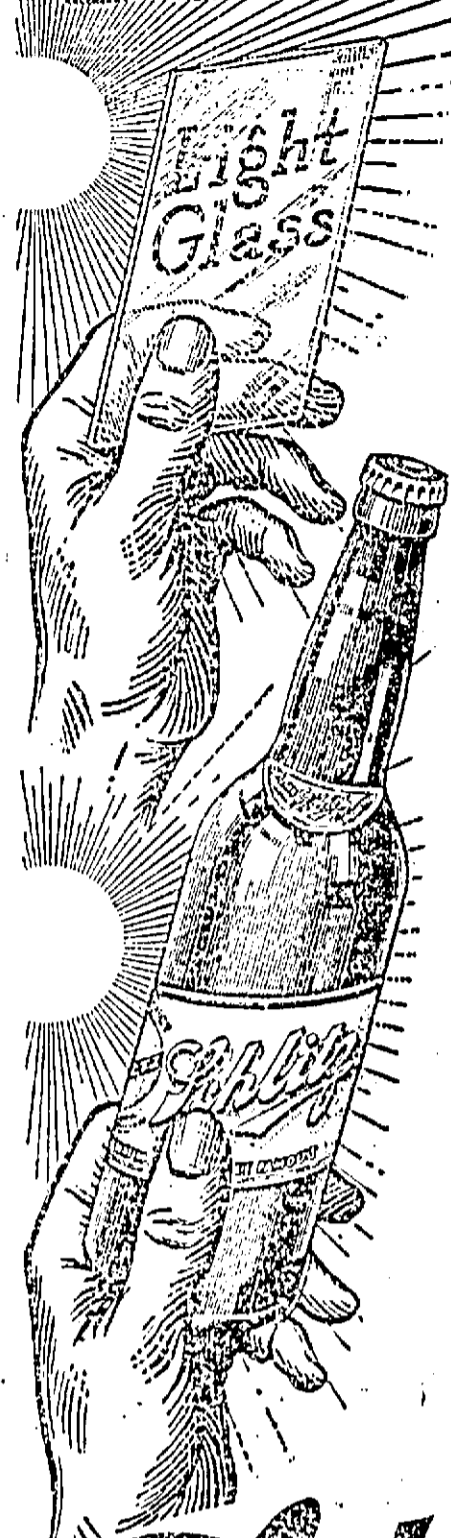

However, there was so much contention in regard to the meaning of the law that a test case was brought in the courts by the Rev. Olympia Brown, president of the Wisconsin Suffrage association. It was tried in the circuit court, of which Judge Winslow of Racine, now of the supreme bench, was presiding officer, and he decided in favor of Mrs. Brown and the contestants. There was great rejoicing in the suffrage camp but it was of short duration, since the case was appealed to the supreme court and Judge Winslow's decision reversed.

Thus the suffrage of Wisconsin women was definitely limited to school officers. And even this they could not utilize for several years, since the law made no provision for its own execution. It was not until 1901 that the legislature passed a law providing for separate ballot boxes for women. Of course previous to this women voted at school district meetings and served on school boards.

Women suffragists all over the country were bitterly disappointed at the decision of the supreme court of Wisconsin. The Wisconsin state suffrage association acted loudly by its president in her effort to have the law tested, and though it was rather large in membership not wealthy in purse paid the expenses of the court proceedings, which amounted to a large sum.

Suffrage Sunday in Wisconsin will soon be announced by the Political

THE TEST OF TIME

Is a sure test by which to gauge the efficiency of any remedy for human ailments, whether advertised or ethically prescribed by a physician.

A medicine that has stood the test of time is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its intrinsic merit has been proven by the fact that for nearly forty years it has been relieving womanhood from suffering and has constantly grown in popularity. The demand for it today is larger than that of any similar remedy in the world.

This famous remedy for female ills has proved to be of incalculable value to hundreds of thousands of American women.

BAD BREATH

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove It. A Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, will positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are known for bad breath by all who know them.

Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities.

They do all that dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil.

Try Olive Tablets today. Take one every night for a week and note the effect.

Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own.

100 and 250 per box.

CAUSE FOR ALARM

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating A Symptom That Should Not Be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Overeating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, healthiest and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Jansville who suffer from any stomach discomfort, indigestion, or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results.

We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefited by them. We honestly believe them to be without equal. They give very prompt relief, adding to neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition, and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases, length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store, The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co., 11 West Milwaukee St., Jansville, Wis.

Copyright, 1911, by the Oving Publishing Company

"When we have escaped," she went on, "if ever we do escape, then this will still be our truth, will it not, John Cowles?"

"Yes, and our marriage when you have signed, now or any other time."

"But if you had ever signed words like these with any other woman, then it would not be our marriage nor our truth, would it, John Cowles?"

"No," I said. And then I felt my face grow very cold and pale in one sudden breath.

"But why do you look so sad?" she asked of me suddenly. "Is it not well to wait?"

"Yes, it is well to wait," I said. She was so absorbed that she did not look at me closely at that instant.

Again she took up the clattered stick in her little hand and hesitated. "See," she said, "I shall sign one letter of my name each week until all my name is written. Till that last letter we shall be engaged. After the last letter, when I have signed it of my own free will and clean and solemn—clean and solemn, John Cowles—then we will be—Oh, take me home—take me to my father, John Cowles! This is a hard place for a girl to be."

Suddenly she dropped her face into her hands, sobbing.

She hid her head on my breast, sore distressed now. She was glad that she might now be more free, needing some manner of friend, but she was still—what? Still woman! Poor Saxon! I must have been had I not sworn to love her forever and singly all my life. But yet—

I looked at the robe, now fallen loose upon the ground, and saw that she had added one letter of her name and stopped. She smiled wistfully. "Your name would be shorter to sign a little at a time," she said, "but a girl must have time. She must wait. And see," she said, "I have no ring. A girl always has a ring."

This lack I could not solve, for I had none.

"Take mine," she said, removing the ring with the rose seal. "Put it on the other finger—the right one."

I did so, and I kissed her. But yet—she was woe and strained now. A pathetic droop came to the corners of her mouth. The palm of her little hand turned up loosely as though she had been tired and now was resting. "We must wait," she said, as though to herself.

But what of me that night? When I had taken my own house and bed beyond a little thicket that she might be alone, that night I found myself breathing hard in terror and dread, gazing up at the stars in agony, bending my hands on the ground at the thought of the ruin I had wrought, the crime that I had done in guiding this I had sought.

I had written covenants before! The strength and sweetness of all this strange new life with her had utterly wiped out my past, had put away as though forever the world I once had known. Until the moment Ellen Meriwether began the signing of her name I swear I had forgotten that ever in the world was another by name of Grace Sheraton. I may not be believed—I ought not to be believed—but this is the truth, and the truth by what measures my love for Ellen Meriwether was bright and fixed, as much as my promise to the other had been ill advised and wrong.

Far rather had I been beneath the sod that moment, for I knew, since I loved Ellen Meriwether, who must not complete the signing of her name upon the scroll of our covenant!

CHAPTER XVII.

The Loss of Paradise.

THIS question of food over arose for settlement, and early the next morning I set out upon a short exploring expedition.

There were trout in our little mountain stream, and although we had no hooks or lines, I managed to take a few of these in my hands, chasing them under the stones. I shook the bullet pouch at my belt and found it light. We had barely two dozen bullets left, and few hunters would promise themselves over a dozen head of big game for twice as many shots. I cast about me in search of red cedar that I might make a bow. I searched the willow thicket for arrow shafts and prowled among little flats and pointed stones on the shores of our stream seeking arrow points. It finally appeared to me that we might rest here for a time and be fairly safe to make a living in some way. Then, as I was obliged to admit, we would need to hurry on to the southward. But again fate had its way with us, setting aside all plans. When I returned to our encampment, instead of seeing Ellen come out to meet me as I expected, I found her lying in the shade of the little tepal.

"You are hurt?" I cried. "What has happened?"

"My foot," she said. "I think it is broken!" She was unable to stand. Walking along the stony creek bank she had slipped, and her moccasined foot, caught in the narrow crack between two rocks, had been held fast as she fell forward.

So now it was my turn to be surgeon. Tenderly as I might, I examined the foot, now badly swollen and rapidly becoming discolored. In spite of her protest, although I know it hurt me more than herself, I flexed the joints and found the ankle at least safe. A little grating in the smaller bones, just below the instep, told me of a fracture.

"Ellen," said I to her, "the foot is broken here—two bones, I think, are gone."

She sank back upon her robe with an exclamation as much of horror as pain.

"What shall we do?" she murmured. "I shall be crippled! I cannot walk! We shall perish!"

"No," I said to her; "we shall mend it. In time you will not know it has happened." Thus we gave courage to each other.

Now, when she was thus helpless and suffering, needing all her strength, how could I find it in my heart to tell her that secret which it was my duty to tell? How could I inflict upon her a still more poignant suffering than this physical one? Each morning I said to myself: "Today, if she is better, I will tell her of Grace Sheraton. She must know." But each time I saw her face I could not tell her.

Each day she placed a clean white pebble in a little pile at her side. Presently there were seven.

"John Cowles," she said to me that morning, "bring me our writing, and bring me my pen. Today I must sign another letter." And, smiling, she did so, looking up into my face with love showing on her own. And the charcoal been lying flame and had she written on my bare heart she could not have hurt me more.

On the fifth week she called once more for her charcoal pen and signed the last letter of her Christian name.

"See, there," she said; "it is all my girl name, E-L-L-E-N." I looked at it, her hand in mine.

"Ellen!" I murmured. "It is significant enough, because you are the only Ellen in the world." But she put away my hand gently and said, "Wait."

She asked me now to get her some sort of cut branch for a crutch, saying she was going to walk. And walk she did, though resting her foot very little on the ground. After that daily she went farther and farther, watched me as I guided for trout in the stream, aided me as I picked berries in the thickets, helped me with the deer I brought into camp.

"You are very good to me," she said, "and you hunt well. You work. You are a man, John Cowles. I love you."

But bending words so sweet as these to me, still I did not tell her what secret was in my soul. Each day that other world seemed vaguer and farther away.

Each day, too, it seemed less worth while to speak. Now I could not endure the thought of losing her.

One day we wandered in a dense berry thicket, out of which rose here and there chokecherry trees, and we began to gather some of these sour fruits for use in the pemmican which we planned to manufacture.

All at once our dog began to growl and erect his hair, sniffing not at the foot scent, but looking directly into the thicket just ahead. He began then to bark, and as he did so there rose, with a sudden sort of grunt and a clumping of jaws like a great hog, a vast yellow-gray object, whose head topped the bushes that grew densely all about.

The girl at my side uttered a cry of terror and turned to run as best she might, but she fell and lay there cowering.

The grizzly stood looking at me vindictively with little eyes, its ears back, its jaws working, its paws swinging loosely at its side, the claws white at the lower end, as though newly sharpened for slaughtering. I saw then that it was angered by the sight of the dog and would not leave us. Each moment I expected to hear it crash through the bush in its charge. Once down in the brush, there would be small chance of delivering a fatal shot, whereas now, as it swung its broad head slightly to one side, the best possible opportunity for killing it presented itself immediately. Without hesitation I swung up the heavy barrel and drew the small silver bead directly on the base of the ear where the side bones of a bear's head are flatter and thinner, directly alongside the brain.

The vicious crack of the rifle sounded loud there in the thicket, but there came no answer in response to it save a crashing and slipping and a breaking down of the bushes as the vast carcass fell at full length. The little ball had done its work and found the brain.

We were two savages, successful now in the chase—successful, indeed, in winning the capital prize of all savages, for few Indians will attack the grizzly if it can be avoided. She hid her hand wonderingly upon the barrel of the rifle, looking at it curiously, that it had been so deadly as to slay a creature so vast as this. Then she leaned contentedly against my side, and so we sat there for a time. "John Cowles," she said, "you are very much a man. I am not afraid when you are with me." I put my arm about her. The world seemed wild and fair and sweet to me. Life, savage, stern, swept through all my veins. We were very busily engaged in cutting up the slaughtered grizzly, when all at once we stopped and looked at each other in silence. We had heard a sound. To me it sounded like a rifle shot. We listened.

It came again, with many others. There was a volley of several shots, sounds certain beyond any manner of question. Her eyes were large and startled. I caught her bloody hand in my bloody one, and for an instant I believed we both meditated flight deeper into the wilderness.

"It may not be any one we know," I said. "It may be Indians."

"No," said she, "it is my father. They have found us. We must go! John!" she turned toward me and put her hands on my breast—"John!" I saw terror and regret and resolve look out of her eyes, but not joy at this deliverance. No, it was not joy that shone in her eyes. None the less the ancient yoke of society being offered, we bowed our heads again, souls and slaves, surrendering freedom, joy, content, as though that were our duty.

Silently we made our way toward the edge of the thicket where it faced upon the open valley.

Almost as we paused I saw coming forward the stooping figure of an Indian, half naked, belegged, moccasined, following our fresh tracks at a trot.

I carefully covered him with the little silver bead, minded to end his quest. But before I could estimate his errand or prepare to receive him closely in case he proved an enemy, I saw approaching around a little point of timber other men, white men, a half dozen of them, one a tall man in dusty garments, with boots and hat and gloves.

And then I saw her, my promised wife, leave my side and limp and stagger forward, her arms outstretched. I saw the yoke of submission, the covenant of society, once more accepted.

"Father!" she cried.

out. "Why did you not come on to the settlements? What reason was there for your not coming back at once to the valley of the Platte? Here you are, a hundred miles out of your way, where a man of any intelligence, it seems to me, would naturally have turned back to the great trail. Hundreds of wagons pass there every day. There is a stage line with daily coaches, stations, houses. A telegraph line runs from one end of the valley to the other. You could not have missed all this had you struck south. A fool would have known that. But you took my girl!" He choked up and pointed to me, ragged and uncouth.

Not a Musical Horse.

When a boy gets hold of a month organ there's no telling what will happen. One in Detroit was going along the street the other day, playing "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and playing it first-class, too, when a horse reared up and fell down. He had been used to hearing the piano playing at home, and when real music struck him he went right to his heart and kicked him over.

Head bear clutched in one hairy hand. And somber and sullen as any savage, brunt and silent in resentment at being disturbed, I stared at them.

"Who are you?" demanded the tall man of me sternly, but still I did not answer. The girl's hands nudged at his shoulders. "It is my friend," she said. "He saved me. It is Mr. John Cowles, father of the Virginia Cowles family. He has come to see you." But he did not hear her or show that he heard. His arm about her, supporting her as she limped, he turned back down the valley, and we others followed slowly.

Presently he came to the rude shelter which had been our home. Without speaking he walked about the camp, pushed open the door of the little ragged tepee and looked within. The floor was very narrow. There was one meager bed of hides. There was one fire.

"Come with me," he said at length to me. And so I followed him apart, where a little thicket gave us more privacy.

"You are John Cowles, sir, then?" he said to me at length quietly. "Lieutenant Holman told me something of this when he came in with his men from the east."

I nodded and waited.

"Are you aware, sir, of the seriousness of what you have done?" he broke

Old Rose Tree.

The rose show given in Paris by the French Horticultural society recalled the fact that the oldest rose tree in the world is believed to be one which grows on a wall of the cathedral at Hildesheim, Germany. Eleventh century records make mention of expenses incurred by caretakers of the cathedral in maintaining this tree, which covers the wall to a height of twenty-five feet and in twenty inches thick at the root.

Powerful Influence of Bells.

Bells have always exercised a powerful influence on the imagination of poets and writers. Perhaps the best description of the frenzy of excitement that can be caused by the love of great bells and by their vibrating, insistent, compelling tone is that given by Victor Hugo in his account of Quashmoia, the deformed bellringer of Notre Dame.
